

FROM NEUROSCIENCE TO DEVELOPMENT STUDIES:
TAKING STOCK OF TRANSLATION STUDIES
IN AFRICA

FIFTH SCHOOL FOR TRANSLATION STUDIES IN AFRICA:

28 MAY – 1 JUNE 2018

STELLENBOSCH UNIVERSITY, SOUTH AFRICA

ARE YOU WORKING ON AN MA OR PHD IN TRANSLATION, INTERPRETING OR INTERCULTURAL COMMUNICATION?

DO YOU WANT TO DEVELOP YOUR THINKING AND RESEARCH SKILLS?

THEN YOU SHOULD NOT MISS THE FIFTH SCHOOL FOR TRANSLATION STUDIES IN AFRICA!

The Departments of Linguistics and Language Practice at the University of the Free State and Afrikaans and Dutch at Stellenbosch University, in cooperation with ATSA, are presenting the Fifth School for Translation Studies (STSA) in Africa from 28 May to 1 June 2018. The School will be hosted by Stellenbosch University, in Stellenbosch, South Africa.

The School is presented for doctoral/master's students and/or lecturers in translation/interpreting studies and intercultural communication from all over Africa with the aim of working towards an African research agenda for translation studies. The School features lectures, tutorials, and conference presentations under the guidance of prominent scholars in Translation Studies and Intercultural Communication.

For 2018, Prof Maria Tymoczko from the University of Massachusetts will be the keynote speaker, addressing the following topics:

- Translation and neuroscience
- Translation in postcolonial context/agency

This year's event will be preceded by the first official conference of the Association for Translation Studies in Africa (ATSA) in Stellenbosch on 25 and 26 May 2018.

For detailed information and registration forms, visit the website of the Summer School at:

<https://www.ufs.ac.za/humanities/departments-and-divisions/linguistics-and-language-practice-home/summer-schools/atsa-2018>